JDC Fights Hunger In Europe

In the fight against hunger in Europe this winter, the Joint Distribution Committee, major American agency aiding distressed Jews abroad, will accelerate its food purchases for immediate shipment abroad to reach more than 8,500,000 pounds during the last quarter of 1947, it was announced by Moses A. Leavitt, JDC Executive Vice-Chairman. These JDC purchases for stop-gap relief will cost more than $2,000,000.

JDC shipments of all supplies from the U.S. alone during the first ten months of the year totalled 64,376,365 pounds, valued at $17,345,000. This figure is more than double its total shipments abroad during all of 1946. More than 47,500,000 pounds were in foodstuffs; nearly 9,000,000 pounds in clothing; and 8,000,000 pounds in medical supplies, tools and other supplies for use in vocational training and work projects on the continent. Large quantities of additional supplies were purchased within Europe and trans-shipped to areas of need on the continent.

Funds for relief, resettlement and reconstruction programs on behalf of Jewish men, women and children abroad are provided through the $170,000,000 campaign of the United Jewish Appeal.

Mr. Leavitt declared that on the basis of reports from JDC field representatives stationed throughout Europe the coming winter will be one in which hunger and hardship will be widespread on the continent, particularly among the Jewish population.

"Crop shortages and famine in Eastern Europe, spiralling inflation, and the withdrawal of UNRRA have already caused many serious situations which can only prevent any slowing of progress towards revival."

Nearly 25 per cent of the foodstuffs now being purchased will go to supplement the diets of approximately 250,000 displaced Jewish men, women and children living in the camps and centers of Germany, Austria, and Italy. Shipments of milk and other quick energy foodstuffs have gone to the 4,400 "Exodus 1947" refugees now living in DP camps in Emden and Wilhelmshaven, Germany. These refugees receive a daily food ration from the British Army of 1,500 calories, mainly in carbohydrates. During September and October JDC food among these refugees totalled 160 tons, bringing their daily ration above the subsistence level.

Other lands where overseas shipments during the winter will be extensive are Rumania, where 18,000,000 pounds of grain and other foods have gone this year; and Hungary, which received more than 7,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs during the first ten months of the year. Orders now being placed for shipment to Europe before the end of the year call for the purchase of cereals, dairy products, fats and oils, meat and fish, fruits, juices, and jams, vegetables, sugar, chocolate and tea, to be distributed by the overseas staff of more than 300 workers.

Asks Communism Check-Up In Churches

Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, who resigned as leader of Temple Emanu-El, in Yonkers, N.Y., as the result of a controversy over a series of articles he wrote on anti-communism, called on the National Conference of Christians and Jews to investigate Communism in the churches.

The telegram was sent to Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the conference, 381 Fourth Avenue, New York, whose office acknowledged receipt of the request but withheld comment in the absence of Dr. Clinchy who is in Europe. Rabbi Schultz wired as follows:

"My articles on 'Communism in the Churches', have not been refuted factually but there have been much bitterness and clamor. In fairness to America, the church and to myself, I propose that a committee of national religious leaders be appointed by the conference to investigate Communism in the churches.

"I believe the vast majority of clergy and laity, who are loyal Americans, will welcome this fair investigation. The church and synagogue can build America's morale or weaken it. If part of the religious structure has been captured by pro-Soviet forces, let the people know. If the accusation is false, let that be revealed.

"The committee should consist of eight or ten clergymen and laymen. Among those asked to serve, I suggest should be the following: Rev. William C. Kernan, of the Institute of Democracy; the Most Rev. Francis A. McNamara, Bishop Co-adjutor of the Catholic Archdiocese of New York; Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Seminary; Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, Methodist minister; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald; Dr. Roy G. Ross, executive secretary of the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, Union Theological Seminary; Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Riverside Church; Dr. Robert McCracken, Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church; Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S.J., Georgetown University; Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, Dr. Louis Finkelstein, Jewish Theological Seminary; Dr. Israel Goldstein, Congregation B'nai Jeshurun; Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Temple The Temple; Dr. Stephen S. Zionists To Ignore Land Sales

Zionist leaders at Jerusalem are worried about rumored British plans to sell valuable state-owned lands. They hold that if the present Government carries out such sales, the future Jewish state would consider the sales invalid and would seize the lands.

A Government spokesman said that by the end of November, the army already would have requisitioned 5,000 acres, which is 10 per cent of all land taken for army camp sites.

An official spokesman assured the Jerusalem press that the Government did not intend to sell any Government lands except reclaimed parcels at Haifa that already had been reported. The Government already has stated that this sale is to provide working capital for the new Jewish state, according to the New York Times.

The Jewish Agency for Palestine has filed a protest with the Government, declaring that they will not be in any way bound by the sales.

The Jewish Agency prepared a formal protest for presentation to the Palestine Government announcing its refusal to accept any such Government action and warning that the sale will not be recognized.

Meanwhile, Zionist colonization of the Negeb, the desert area on the Egyptian border, is being pushed as hard as material obstacles permit. Two new colonies were established within twenty-five miles of the Egyptian border, bringing the total number of Jewish settlements in the Negeb to nineteen and the number of colonists to 1,960.

One of the new settlements is at Shusha, about fifty miles south of Beersheba and six miles farther south than any previous Jewish settlement; the other named Ofakim (horizons), is about twenty miles southwest of Beersheba.

Is Alarmed Over Political Plan

Plans to establish the American Jewish Conference on a permanent basis to coordinate all Jewish activities in the U.S. were opposed by Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the American Council for Judaism. He stressed that American Jews were not a political entity, and that therefore "it is impossible for any individual or single agency to speak politically for them in a democratic way."

"The whole idea of political activity along separate religious lines," he added, "is repugnant to the American idea of democracy in which church and state are separate and political rights and responsibilities transcend race or creed.

"As Americans, our political representation to our own Government is through our precious right of the ballot and full participation in the procedures of the recognized political parties of the United States.

"Our political contacts with a future Palestinian government, to be determined by the United Nations, will be through the proper agencies of the Government of the United States, as are our political contacts with the government of any other foreign state."

This alluded to the conference plan for "separate political representation by Jews, as Jews, to our Government, to the United Nations and a special political attachment of Americans of Jewish faith to the political structure in Palestine."

Was Leader In U.S. Garment Trade

Alexander Printz, a leader in the garment industry, died at Cleveland, Ohio, in the University Hospital from the effects of a stroke. His age was 77.

Mr. Printz was president and a director of the Printz-Biederman Company, coat and suit manufacturers, with plants in Cleveland, Lorain and Mansfield, Ohio. He also was chairman of the National Recovery Board of the cloak and suit industry.

Born in Hungary, he was brought to Cleveland as an infant. His father, a designer of women's clothes, founded in 1893 the Printz-Biederman Company with his sons, Alexander and Michael, and his brother-in-law, Joseph Biederman.

Alexander Printz was a leader in civic affairs and had served on national committees. During the first World War, he served as chief of the Clothing and Equipage Division of the Quartermaster Corps. For this service he was cited by the late Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, who also appointed him a colonel.

Besides heading the Printz-Biederman Company, which employs more than 1,000 persons, he was a director of the Lindner Company, a former director of the Midland Bank, and was for years president of the Oakwood Country Club.

Mr. Printz leaves his wife, Mrs. Myra Steele Printz; three brothers, William, of Cleveland; David, of Atlanta; and Arthur, of Boston, and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Selig, of Atlanta; and Mrs. Louise Kluger and Miss Bertha Printz, both of Cleveland.

U.S. House Group Seeks Entry For Share Of DP

A House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on displaced persons submitted a program designed to wind up the problem before the United States found itself left alone and solely responsible for a solution of the question.

The subcommittee of which Representative James G. Fulton, Republican, of Pennsylvania, is chairman, recommended that the United States act quickly to accept a share of the displaced persons as immigrants while taking a firm stand in urging other countries to do their own share.

Mr. Fulton said that France, which joined the International Relief Organization had done nothing to participate in it and has contributed no money, except a small sum for organization expenses, while holding 450,000 German prisoners of war as laborers within her borders. At the same time, he said, national teams from Canada and other countries, are "skimming off the cream" of more capable displaced persons for special treatment as immigrants.

"If that went on," he added, "we would then be left in our zone in Germany bearing the brunt of caring for the people whom nobody wants. We are against a system of poorhouses in Europe."

The subcommittee recommended that the relief organization call an immediate international conference to urge other member nations to establish quotas of displaced persons whom they will accept and to facilitate their entry.

The problem, he said, is much bigger that that of Jewish refugees. These number about 164,000, according to the report, but constitute only 22 per cent of the displaced persons. The subcommittee urged that the Jewish problem should not prevent any slowing of progress towards revival.

Nearly 25 per cent of the foodstuffs now being purchased will go to supplement the diets of approximately 250,000 displaced Jewish men, women and children living in the camps and centers of Germany, Austria, and Italy. Shipments of milk and other quick energy foodstuffs have gone to the 4,400 "Exodus 1947" refugees now living in DP camps in Emden and Wilhelmshaven, Germany. These refugees receive a daily food ration from the British Army of 1,500 calories, mainly in carbohydrates. The congregation of Central Synagogue and virtually all of the 150 children in its religious school attended a ceremony in front of the structure at Lexington Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, New York, for the dedication and blessing of four plane trees, the gift of Louis Samler, of 875 Fifth Avenue.

The Rev. Dr. Jonah B. Wise, rabbi of the synagogue, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Dr. David J. Seligman, assistant rabbi. Central Synagogue is the oldest house of worship of Reform Judaism in New York. The temple with its twin towers was erected in 1870 and the congregation was founded in 1846.

The tree dedication marked formally the movement to renovate extensively both the interior and exterior of the synagogue, which is a landmark in the neighborhood.

The inside reconstruction will include the installation in what is now the vestry room of an Isaac Mayer Wise museum. Rabbi Isaac Mayer Wise, father of the rabbi of Central Synagogue, founded Reform Judaism in America and also founded Hebrew Union College, at Cincinnati, Ohio.

The exterior improvements will include new stained glass windows and new roofing. The congregation has already raised a considerable sum to begin the improvements. In the renovating the architecture of the exterior will be unchanged, as will be the assembly hall, where services of worship are held, in the interior.

The saplings, a kind of maple, which were planted Nov. 9, last, have been turned over to the city, which will thereafter care for them as part of the general park system.

When Central Synagogue was built seventy-seven years ago there were numerous spots in that part of the city which were rural or suburban in aspect. Many of the houses in Fifty-fifth Street still retain their garden spots in the rear. "Central Synagogue feels that since it is the oldest Reform synagogue structure in continuous use in New York City and one of the oldest in the country, it should be retained as an 'ancient landmark'" said Rabbi Seligman.

"The congregation also feels that its location now is of increasing importance since this part of the City is rapidly changing back to what it really was almost two generations ago.

"It is becoming more and more a permanent residential section. The synagogue also abuts on the area which will be built up through the United Nations, and is ready to serve that great organization wherever the progress will fit it."

"CARE" FOOD GOES TO REFUGEES

Thirty-three CARE kosher food packages, containing seven hundred pounds of food, are on their way to the "Exodus" refugees in a camp at Poppendorf, Germany, as the initial gift of a committee of CARE employees. The committee was formed to send aid to the 4,400 men, women and children who were passengers on the steamer "Exodus", when its voyage to Palestine was interrupted. The refugees were subsequently landed at Hamburg and interned in the camp.

A group in CARE's Allocations Department conceived the idea of sending help. It caught on quickly, and a committee was soon formed in all departments of CARE's New York Office, where over five hundred people are employed in processing orders for food and parcels for Europe. Herman Adler, of the Allocations Department, is chairman of the CARE employee committee, which raised a total of $200 within the first few days of its formation.

The drive is continuing, so that further shipments of CARE kosher food, blankets and woollen packages may reach the "Exodus" refugees in the near future. Other individuals, and organizations, wishing to aid the group may send their orders to the nearest representative of CARE, 50 Park Place, New York

Incorporation Of Arabs And Jews Into Parent States

By Alvin Johnson

The following appeared as a letter to the New York Times:

Peace in Palestine is perceptibly nearer with the promise of the abandonment by the British of the Mandate and the generally favorable reception of the majority report of the Palestine Commission. Peace is nearer, but it is still far away.

Partition is accepted by most, as Solomon's servants accepted his decree to cut the living child in two. A Palestine State or a State of Canaan would be viable. The proposed fragments of the hack-saw partition operation have small promise of viability.

I had proposed another solution: a non-territorial federal state of Palestine, with Jewish and Arab national elections, if any, its national Legislature, if any, its forms of local self-government; and let the Jewish minorities have a similar privilege. The inevitable result would be a continuous negotiation between the Jewish and the Arab states, which would necessarily operate on the principle of equality. We should find the principle of non-territorial federation at work, although nobody might recognise it as such.

We are dealing in Palestine with two of the most gifted, the most human peoples in the world, the Jews and the Arabs. The Arabs have only recently emerged from century-long oppression. The Jews have just yet emerged from similar a safe and secure Jewish homeland in Palestine. Not a single Arab would need to be displaced, and a single Arab but would find his standard of living rising. From [illegible] nation united, Jewish [illegible]

[illegible] Sir David Ormsby-Gore remarked of one of my Palestine solutions, "It is so simple that only a child can understand it."

The crux of the problem is the fate of the minorities left within the borders of the two new sovereign states. Four hundred thousand Arabs would find themselves within the Jewish state. A much smaller number of Jews would find themselves within the Arab state, but numbers are a false measure of human misery. The settlement promises full minority rights. It is to laugh. There was never a majority, nor a minority either, that lived up to such an arrangement in good faith. Will the Arab minority within the Jewish state be content with Jewish law, Jewish educational provisions, Jewish administration of social services? Will the Jews left within the Arab state be content? Of course not.

But grant me one apparently trifling amendment of the commission plan. Let the Arab minority in Jewish territory be recognized as full citizens of the Arab state, with a right to participate in its

MARRIAGES

BERNSTEIN-AUERBACH

The marriage of Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Auerbach, 3681 St. Famille Street, to Harold Bernstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Bernstein, 5687 Park Avenue, took place at Bnai Jacob Synagogue, on October 16, at half-past seven o'clock, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating, assisted by Rabbi M. Wachtfogel, and Rev. A. H. Greenberg. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white crepe gown, with yoke and long, pointed, sleeves fashioned of Chantilly lace; tightly-fitted, silver-beaded bodice; gathered skirt, and slight train. A halo of stiffened Chantilly lace caught her shoulder-length tulle illusion veil, and she carried a Bible, with mauve orchids and satin ribbon streamers. Mrs. Monte Highbloom, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, wore a royal-blue dinner gown, with bodice trimmed with silver beading; and halo hat and gloves to match. She carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations. The bridesmaids, Misses Ita Bernstein, in turquoise-blue; Ethel Sheinfield, in mauve; Roslyn Sheinfield, in [illegible]; and Betty White, in yellow, wore gowns designed with tightly-fitted bodices and full skirts; and had silver-sequinned crowns, with veiling to match their gowns. They carried nosegays of roses. Marion Forman, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a pink dress of Swiss organdy, with blue smocking; matching bonnet, and nosegay of pink roses and blue streamers. Monte Highbloom, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man; and the ushers were Philip Corber, Ronald Bass, Lionel Schwartz, and Irving Sheinfield. For decoration, there were ferns, standards of multi-colored chrysanthemums and pom-poms, with candelabra. A choir sang. At dinner in the community hall, the tables held pom-pom centrepieces. Mrs. Auerbach, mother of the bride, wore a grey crepe gown, trimmed with silver sequins, and fashioned with a heart-shaped neckline, and long sleeves. Her hat was of grey and fuchsia-shaded ostrich feathers; and she had a mauve orchid corsage. Mrs. Bernstein, mother of the groom, wore a black crepe gown, with an over-tunic which was embroidered with silver and gold beading and sequins and a nylon yoke, and slit skirt. She had a champagne-colored feather ornament in her hair, and a corsage of mauve orchids. The bridal couple left for New York and Atlantic City, N.J., the bride going away in a black and grey suit with a matching feathered hat, and a lynx jacket. They will live at 3681 St. Famille Street. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Arron, of Ottawa, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bernstein, Mrs. J. Deskin, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Auerback and family; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Auerback and family, of New York; Mrs. A. Drimack, of Detroit, Mich.; and Mrs. Philip Bernstein, and Harris Bernstein, of Cochrane, Ont., were wedding guests.

GOLDBERG-MORANTZ

The marriage of Selma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Morantz, 4245 Fulton Avenue, to Harry Goldberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Goldberg, 5630 Durocher Avenue, took place at the Mount Sinai Synagogue, in the Cedar Hall, on Tuesday, November 4, at half-past six o'clock, Rabbi Maurice Cohen officiating, assisted by Cantor Gabriel Berkovits, and Cantor A. Miller. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a blush-shaded satin gown, with satin and lace trimming, fitted mid-Victorian styled bodice, fashioned with an off-the-shoulder, lace-trimmed neckline; long, pointed, lace-trimmed sleeves; and bouffant skirt, with a long train. She had a matching satin lattice-work headdress, with a finger-tip veil of ivory-shaded illusion tulle, and her bouquet was of white orchids. Mrs. Al. Braunstein, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a strapless periwinkle-blue moire gown, with a bouffant skirt, and a mantilla headdress of white lace. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white gardenias and red roses. Joseph Goldberg, brother of the groom, was best man. There were standards of pink and white chrysanthemums, with candelabra trimmed with white satin ribbon bows. "Because" was sung. Receiving, at the Hall, Mrs. Morantz, mother of the bride, wore a pearl-grey crepe dinner gown, trimmed with colored sequins; grey tulle hat, with similar trimming; and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Goldberg, mother of the groom, wore a pearl-grey crepe dinner gown, with silver sequin embroidery, a blue velvet hat with grey feathers; and an orchid corsage. The bridal couple left for Lake Placid, N.Y., and New York, the bride wearing an electric-blue suit, with black Persian lamb trimming, and black accessories. They will live at 1360 Bernard Avenue West. Harold Morantz, brother of the bride; Miss Sherri Segal, Mrs. J. Dolinsky, and Mr. and Mrs. S. 116,000 Attend Palestine Hebrew Schools

The number of pupils attending Hebrew schools in Palestine in the current year is tentatively estimated at 116,000. Last year's figure was 111,000 pupils, of whom 97,631 attended schools in the Vaad Leumi (Jewish National Council) school system and 24,000 attended other (private) schools. Figures released by the Education Department of the Vaad Leumi indicate that the public education system supervised by that body in the year 5706 embraced 719 educational institutions with 4,318 teachers and 97,631 pupils. The educational institutions included 368 nursery schools, 291 elementary, 34 secondary and 18 technical schools, and four teachers' training colleges.

The expenditure of the Hebrew educational service, beginning with kindergartens and ending with the Hebrew University and the Haifa Technical Institute for the year 5706 totaled LP. 3,500,000 ($14,000,000). The Vaad Leumi school system alone accounted for about two million Pounds ($8,000,000). The Hebrew University for LP. 312,000 ($1,248,000); the Haifa Technical Institute for LP. 114,000 ($456,000), and various other educational institutions for the balance.

Nearly 7,000 youths are preparing for life in Palestine in 79 hachsharoth assisted by the Joint Distribution Committee in Italy alone.

Bank of Montreal Again Sets Records As Deposits, Total Resources, Loans Up

Reflecting Canada's accelerated post-war expansion, the Bank of Montreal Monday reported an increase in practically all departments of banking activity, with a financial statement for its 130th year that gives ample evidence of its traditional strength. Deposits of $1,783,000,000 again set for the bank an all-time high, showing an increase of $47,000,000 over the previous year, and demonstrating the way in which Canadians are endeavouring to safeguard against inflation. A transfer of $2,000,000 to the reserve fund brings the total in this fund to $44,000,000, with capital remaining at $36,000,000.

In line with the increased deposits, the bank's total resources also reached a new record at $1,-898,000,000.

The year-end finds the bank holding $957,000,000 in government and other public securities, a decrease of $142,000,000 from the 1946 figure, which is largely offset by a heavy increase in the amount of commercial and other loans. While the bank's highly liquid position has been well maintained, the figure for quickly available assets at $1,-432,000,000 shows a reduction, reflecting the increased use of the bank's funds in business and industrial activity. The ratio of quickly available resources to public liabilities stands at 78.79 percent, compared with 85.35 percent last year.

LOANS INCREASE SHARPLY

Canada's continuing post-war industrial expansion is denoted by an increase of $120,000,000 in the bank's commercial and other loans. This represents a rise of 39 percent over last year's figure of $301,-000,000, and 91 percent over the 1945 figure.

Following the same trend, the bank's financing under acceptances and letters of credit rose from $21,-000,000 to $27,000,000. Lessened market activities brought call loans down this year to $36,000,000 — a reduction of $23,000,000.

Heightened industrial activity brought about by the increasing production of peace-time goods found the bank participating to a much greater extent in commercial financing, with holdings of industrial bonds and debentures increased from $56,000,000 in 1946, to $96,000,000 for the year ended October 31, 1947.

Enlargement of the bank's facilities through the construction of new branches and the renovation of premises in various parts of Canada is manifested in a substantial rise in the value of its premises which, at $13,000,000, has increased by nearly three million dollars.

NET PROFITS UP

Although earnings for the year, before taxes, amount to $9,579,285, compared with $10,263,782 in 1946, net profits show an increase.

While taxes at $4,156,000 are still high, and represent 43.3 percent of the profit figure, they show a reduction of $1,821,000 from last year. Largely as a result of this, the bank's net profits for the twelve months just ended are higher, standing at $5,423,285, as compared with $4,487,782 for 1946. This represents a return of 6.6 percent on the shareholders' equity, as compared with 6.7 percent for 1946, and 3.7 percent for 1945.

In addition to regular quarterly dividends of 20 cents per share, an extra distribution of a like amount brought total payments to shareholders this year to $3,600,000, or exactly one dollar per share.

To the balance of $1,823,285.29 after the year's operations was added the 1946 balance of the profit and loss account, amounting to $1,256,285.81. From the resultant total of $3,079,571.10, a transfer of $2,000,000 to the reserve fund leaves the profit and loss balance as at October 31, 1947, at $1,079,-571.10.

The most important items of the balance sheet and profit and loss statement are given below, with comparative figures for 1946:

Jewish Contributions To Civilization And Moral Law

By Herbert H. Lehman, Former Governor Of New York.

Much of the sensitiveness and bewilderment of people of our faith, I believe, comes from ignorance of our history and traditions. I have found, time and again, that Jews, even those devout in the ceremonial observances, were weak and handicapped against moral attack, in part because they were ignorant of Jewish religion and secular history.

The American Association for Jewish Education, therefore, serves a high purpose. The schools of this Association must inspire our youth and their elders to be increasingly proud of their history and traditions. They will be proud if they learn and understand the deep spiritual significance of Jewish history and the vital part it has played in shaping world civilization. To give them this sense of pride, this feeling of spiritual security, requires that they become familiar with the ideals of Judaism, its spiritual values and what it has contributed over the centuries to the moral law of the world.

They must know ancient Palestine, not only as a great and powerful nation but as a leader and inspirer of those things which have helped to bring to the world justice, law, freedom and democracy. And knowing these things they must make them an ever-living force in their own lives. The experiences of history are vital only when they are made a living part of the present.

The might of the Jewish nation, like all material things, was ephemeral and yielded to the greater power of pagan states. The spiritual concept handed down to Jews scattered throughout the world has been indestructible and has served as a torch which has kept bright their spirit for more than two thousand years in spite of persecution, cruelty, misery and slaughter.

Our young people must be reminded that the law, first handed to man on Mount Sinai, became the rock foundation of all monotheistic religion and the guiding precept of western civilization. The law summed up man's duty to his God and to his fellow man. It represents the spirit of all true religion.

The pronouncements of the prophets and religious leaders of old uncompromisingly commanded righteousness and justice and became an ever-living moral guide. What nobler inspiration than the immortal words of the Prophet Micah: "What doth the Lord require of thee; only to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."

Here are the essentials of all religion summed up without complication and without omission. Here, too, are the essentials of human justice.

Under the ancient Jewish concept there was erected the cornerstone of the brotherhood of man—the doctrine that fundamental human rights and liberty were inalienable and that the dignity and rights of the individual must be respected. Our young people must be told and retold the story of how their ancestors fought against enslavement, how freedom and justice were the passionate inspiration of their being, and how that same unquenchable love of freedom and justice has been handed down through the ages.

We must show how the Jews of old gladly accepted their communal responsibilities toward the poor, the sick, and the weak. That spirit of sharing was the inspiration of later communal philanthropic effort and the forerunner of social justice.

We must teach that though the Jews of old, just as the Jews of today, were willing to defend freedom even with their lives, the dominating aspiration of their being was—as it is ours—a just and peaceful world.

One of the most beautiful prayers which is read in many of our synagogues contains these moving words: "Grant us peace, Thy most precious gift, O Thou eternal source of peace, and enable Israel to be a messenger of peace unto the peoples of the earth."

It is the things of the spirit which made Palestine great. And it is the things of the spirit which must make the new Palestine great when it is reborn—as I hope and pray, with all my heart, it will be reborn before long. Small though the new Palestine will be, poor as it may be, it will have strength and vitality to exert moral leadership among the nations of the world providing its people uncompromisingly cling to the ideals of justice, law, freedom and peace—ideals which have been our heritage and our strength over the centuries. What nobler mission can a people have than to be a messenger of just peace unto the peoples of the earth? Better that than all the power and riches of the world.

BOY HONORED BY POLIO FUND

The memory of Fred Rein, the 14-year-old boy who served as Borough President of Manhattan for one day last July and who died suddenly of poliomyelitis on Oct. 8, was honored in New York by his former classmates at Junior High School 52, Academy Street and Broadway. In a simple ceremony, 500 pupils presented a check for $718 to Lee Thompson Smith, chairman of the Greater New York 1948 March of Dimes.

Fred, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Rein, of 30 Ellwood Street, was an honor student and president of the school's general organization. Less than four months before he died he topped 20,000 students in an essay contest. As a reward he served on July 1 as Borough President for a day.

Mrs. Lou Gehrig, wife of the late baseball player, attended the ceremony.

The American Friends of the Hebrew University, Inc., have bought the six-story and pent-house residential property at 9 East Eighty-ninth Street, New York, from the Asia Institute through Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., according to the Home Title Guaranty Company. The building will house the purchasing organization and five subsidiary groups, including the Medical School Campaign, American Alumni, American Academic Council and American Committee for the Department of Education of the University, and the American Jewish Physical Committee.

Chief Rabbi David Prato and Rafael Cantoni, president of the Italian Union of Jewish Communities, cabled to Secretary of State Marshall that although the UNSCOP majority recommendations "mutilate the area of Palestine granted the Jews under the Balfour Declaration," it represents the beginning of an attempt to meet Jewish needs.

Flight From Europe To Embarkation Points

By Meyer Levin

By now, the drama of the Haganah boats has caught the world's eye, and most people realize the difficulties involved in putting these boats to sea. But little is known of the hazards and difficulties involved in bringing people across Europe to the obscure ports of embarkation. Sometimes a half dozen borders must be crossed, legally, semi-legally, or without sanction; sometimes the Palestine-bound refugees cross and re-cross the same border, wandering from the French zone of military occupation to the American zone in Germany; months go by before they come to a point of embarkation.

The passage across Europe is the work of the Haganah, which has links in every area, and amongst all organized groups of DP's. Little has been disclosed of the functioning of this organization, and few facts can be disclosed. (It is one of the greatest of post-war ironies that the Jews of Europe still have to be aided secretly in their flight.)

Hebrew is the language of the Haganah. Since it is little spoken among the non-Jews, it is an excellent language from the point of view of security. There are Palestinians in the core of the organization, but a surprising number of DP's have learned to speak Hebrew, during the past two years.

When there is to be a "big move", groups who have been selected in the various DP centers and accepted for the trip to Palestine are gathered at established points. They are moved, usually, by truck. If questioned, they respond that they are on their way to an anniversary observance of the massacre at Maidenek, or in a similar vein. Thus they reach an assembly point from which the "big move" takes place.

There is already a firm body of legend about the movements of the "old days". The "old days" were a year ago or two ago, when moving a transport across a border was easier. Now, things are more difficult, but nevertheless the flight continues, and thousands of men, women, and children are brought on the appointed day to the embarkation point.

The people on the move have an unbelievable patience. Night after night, they sleep in trucks or on floors: sometimes they walk for hours to cross a border in dark; sometimes they ride in special trains composed of baggage cars. Sometimes they may be so lucky as to stay overnight in a vast hall with endless rows of army cots, a few water taps, and broken windows.

Yet, during several days with such convoys, scarcely a single incident was witnessed. The good humor of the groups was striking. These are no longer groups dominated by partisan youth. Now, entire families are on the move, out of the Balkans. The flight from Europe is encumbered with family belongings and with dozens of baby carriages.

An idea of the difficulties encountered can only be glimpsed. Though hundreds of truck transports have been successfully organized from one zone into another, from one country into another, there are a few tales which illustrate the hazards and the inevitable temporary failures.

There is, for instance, the legend of the convoy of forty trucks which started one night for an unnamed destination. The convoy travelled through side roads in order to avoid carefully patrolled territory. But when the convoy reached the border post on that road, the leader was informed that it was not an official passage point — he was re-directed, through another route. He knew that route would be dangerous and would not go. Several hours passed as he attempted to reach authorities at the destination point. The trucks jammed with refugees waited all night on the road, while frantic attempts were made to find a way for them.

At last they were ordered back. On the return trip, truck after truck began to run out of gas. The drivers siphoned gasoline from one truck to another, trying to keep the convoy going. The refugees ran out of food. Another day was lost in trying to find a legitimate crossing point. A third night passed on the road, when the trucks completely ran out of gas. On the fourth day, relief supplies of food and gasoline reached the stranded convoy. They were led back into Germany. Eventually, they went on their way to Palestine, by another route.

Obviously, provisions are taken to avoid the results of bad luck, whenever possible. Extra gas and extra rations are carried. But when gasoline is scarce and the movements are not always official, matters can sometimes become difficult. It is not only the boats that are harassed, not only boat movements that are spied upon and sometimes thwarted.

The people who embark on the journey to Palestine know of all the difficulties and all the legends. They undertake the journey, with their children, with their babies, because they have no alternative. They cannot bear to stay in Europe. The Haganah offers them the only comparatively immediate way out, toward Palestine.

Many people on the trucks in the transports, at the halt-stages, will speak of their uncles in America or in England, of possible visas for other countries. They always end with a strange little smile, as if they recognize that the world views them as illogical, while they know within themselves that they have the only logic. They say, "Nevertheless, I'd rather go this way to Palestine. Even if it is only to Cyprus. In Cyprus, is a DP camp not worse than other DP camps. But it is nearer Eretz Israel."

U.S. HOUSE GROUP

20 and 65, except for large numbers of children under 3 years of age. The age group, he said, accounts for a birth-rate as high as 38.9 a thousand in one camp.

The skills of the displaced persons, Mr. Fulton said, include a wide range and embrace many of which there is a shortage in the United States. He said there were many tailors among the refugees and reported that the union working in this industry in New York alone was short about 20,000 apprentices, a deficiency that could well be supplied from among the displaced persons.

Representative Frank L. Chelf, Democrat, of Kentucky, a subcommittee member, told reporters that his Congressional district illustrated the new understanding about displaced persons growing in America. In that district, he said, which has only about 100 foreign-born persons among a total of 500,000, many persons have asked him how they could obtain help from or give aid to the displaced persons.

Representative Jacob K. Javits, Republican, of New York, another member, said that numerous inquiries had been received about the adoption of war orphans and that he proposed to submit legislation to permit the immigration of children under 14 years of age for adoption outside of national quotas.

Pending final solution of the problems of the displaced persons the subcommittee members asked that organizations in the U. S. make some effort to provide materials and simple tools with which the refugees could work. They agreed that idleness was almost as difficult for the displaced persons to bear as the lamentable conditions under which many of them must live.

They suggested the provision of cloth with which clothes could be made or tools to create small objects that could be bartered or sold and thereby help the refugees to hold on to self-respect by supporting themselves in part.

The subcommittee pointed up the urgency of the problem from America's standpoint by reporting that at the current time care of displaced persons has cost $73,500,000 plus the sums "we have lent to other countries to pay their share of the costs."

South African Jewry Loses Romantic Figure

With the passing of Solomon Rabinowitz at Springbok of a heart attack, South African Jewry has lost one of its most romantic figures and a person who was very instrumental in uncovering some of South Africa's richest assets and providing employment for hundreds of poor people, says the South African Jewish Chronicle.

Born in Jeutschek, Lithuania, about 65 years ago, he very early in his life displayed two passions. One was a wanderlust and the second a love for open spaces. Thus, very early in his youth young Solomon was in the habit of stealing away from Cheder and wandering in the open veld. While still in his teens he kept on changing from school to school to the dismay of his parents.

At the age of 15, he came to South Africa and after struggling for a while in Johannesburg, found himself at Cape Town during the South African War. Pretending to be older than he really was, he was accepted for the Army and after spending some time as a soldier was invalided out.

Now again the wanderlust and love for open spaces got hold of him and this time it was the vast uninhabited Namaqualand which appealed to him. Buying a few mules and a wagon, he set out to that territory as a trader. It appeared strange to him that in his own words "the Lord created this vast territory which was unsuitable for agriculture for no purpose whatsoever. He must have, therefore, had some object," and after cogitating and thinking for some time he came to the conclusion that Namaqualand must be highly mineralised.

In between trading he took up the study of mineralogy, geology and kindred sciences and very soon came to the conclusion that his conjecture had some scientific basis. He then started collecting samples of stones and minerals which he picked up in the veld and began consulting prospecting authorities. This gained him a reputation for being "half-mad" and his friends used to fill his pockets with stones and even hide samples of minerals under his plate but this did not discourage Rabinowitz. He was convinced that "the Lord placed in trust for humanity many deposits of various minerals in Namaqualand and it was up to him to help to discover it."

So convinced was he that his idea was right that he spent every penny that he made from trading on buying dynamite and paying labour in order to prospect for copper and diamonds in the Richtersveld and Namaqualand. At length he persuaded the Superintendent of the Namaqua Cape Copper Mines to accompany him on an expedition to the Richtersveld where he showed him very rich deposits of copper. This gentleman later became a strong believer in Mr. Rabinowitz's theory and on a later occasion while very sick actually engaged a doctor to accompany him and Mr. Rabinowitz on another expedition to the Richtersveld.

Mr. Rabinowitz married in 1913 and then his young wife found that though he had very extensive business connections and worked very hard his capital was very poor. She did not know at first that Rabinowitz was spending every penny that he made in his business on prospecting but very soon she found it out and tried to persuade him to pay more attention to his business; but though he passionately loved his wife, the passion of prospecting was even greater and even she could not dissuade him from continuing with his expeditions.

In 1913 and on a later occasion he came very near to discovering the hidden riches of the Namaqualand diamonds but his attempts were frustrated owing to lack of capital. Mr. Rabinowitz was one of the first to "peg" the Buchuberg and Alexander's Bay for diamonds and it is interesting to note that one of his financial supporters as late as 1926, was Major van Zyl who now occupies a very high position in the Government.

He had many narrow escapes while prospecting and on more than one occasion barely escaped with his life. He met many interesting people amongst them the late Fred Cornell, an Irishman and a very romantic figure, who like Rabinowitz was convinced that Namaqualand was the richest mineral bearing territory in the world.

It is recorded that one day Cornell said to Rabinowitz: "When the history of Namaqualand will be rich, and when rich discoveries will be made in this country, discoveries for which you and I will be directly responsible, then some scientists and capitalists will claim the credit for themselves and we, the really responsible parties will be forgotten; but never mind it is worth it." To which Rabinowitz is said to have replied: "It does not matter whether you and I will be remembered; what does matter is that you and I are now risking our lives and sacrificing our opportunities in order to uncover the riches of Namaqualand and that South Africa, our South Africa where our children will live will be all the better for it"; and sure enough the prophecy of these two prospectors was fulfilled.

It was Rabinowitz who drew the attention of the German scientist, Merensky, to the diamonds in Alexander Bay. Merensky made a fortune and spent a good deal of his money in Germany. Rabinowitz on the other hand obtained only a few thousand pounds.

Rabinowitz was a very kind-hearted person and loved by all who knew him. He was charitable and a contributor to many Jewish and non-Jewish causes. He will be remembered in South Africa and missed by Jew and Gentile alike. He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters, one of whom, Miss Isobel Rabinowitz, is at present in Palestine.

Running The Blockade

She slipped into an Italian port during the night as did many fishing boats. The others were heavy with their catches. She was light and high in the water. Six weeks before she had appeared in this port in the same manner, an unusually unlucky fishing boat, never bringing back a catch.

Looking at her closely, you could see she was flying the Italian flag and in neat letters on her bow was her name, "Marguerita." Her hulk had unmistakeable signs of a hard journey and was rusty and faded far above her water line.

No one stirred on her decks. On other boats in the harbor, sailors were making ready to unload their catches. On the Marguerita, they had no catch. She had unloaded her cargo two weeks before in Palestine. She had four times unloaded her cargo in Palestine. Four times she had slipped through the British blockade undetected.

The crew was tired. In her hold, twelve men slept. Six weeks before, a crew of six had taken her out with her small hold filled with human cargo. A few weeks later, on a beach somewhere in Palestine, a group of Haganah men made contact with her and guided her through the darkness to the appointed rendezvous. The cargo quietly slipped ashore to waiting trucks which sped them to safety and new life.

Avoiding the British destroyer which acted as watchdog for that part of the coast was routine for the Marguerita but her mission was not over yet. A few days later, she picked up six members of the crew of another Haganah ship and sailed for Italy.

There were people in Italy waiting for her. On the morning of her arrival, two men rowed out to where she lay, at anchor and boarded her. In the hold they found her sleeping men. There were the brief embraces of close friends who had again accomplished the impossible. British agents were there waiting for the Marguerita. An hour later, the tired crew of the Marguerita hove anchor and sailed out, once again eluding her pursuers.

There Is No Anti-Semitism In Italy

By B. A. Bagnari

What is the present-day position of Italian Jewry, and its relationship with Jewish communities throughout the world?

During a recent visit, after an absence of many years, I met Mr. Rafaelo Cantoni, president of the Italian Jewish communities, to whom I am indebted for much of the information which enabled me to assess that war-torn country's industrial and economic problems.

There are at present some 50,000 Jews in Italy. These can be divided into two main categories: (1) the Italian-born Jew; (2) the refugee Jew, who has escaped from the concentration camp, or who has taken refuge in Italy to escape the horrors of Nazism, and is possibly endeavouring to make his way to Palestine.

The Italian Jews number 30,000. This number was, of course, much larger before the war, before they were decimated by the deportations to Nazi concentration camps, whence few returned, and also by war casualties. The figure has further been reduced because the Jewish communities of Trieste and Fiume have now been cut off from the rest of Italian Jewry.

Italian Jews are distributed mainly among the big towns. The majority are in Rome, where some 12,000 reside. Next comes Milan with about 6,000, then Florence with 2,000. Genoa, Turin and Venice each have a Jewish community varying from 1-2,000. There are, of course, some communities with only about 50 families in towns like Merano and Gorizia.

Most Italian Jews are engaged in industry and commerce, and they participate on an equal footing with the non-Jew. There is in fact no organized anti-Semitism in Italy.

As a result of this lack of anti-[illegible] and the absence of religious differences, there are no specific Jewish traders' associations or Jewish trade unions in Italy.

In Rome, I was told there are over 700 Jewish pedlars, who peddle all kinds of articles from cigarettes to combs) on the Black Market. I ought to explain that the Black Market (la Borsa Nera) is openly practised or used by nearly all Italians irrespective of sex or religion. Indeed, it appears to be recognized as the normal thing to deal in the Black Market for articles in short supply. The Jewish organization is now endeavoring to remove the Jewish pedlars from the Black Market by providing courses of vocational training for them, and for other Jews who have no definite profession or trade and, by this means, turn them into useful citizens.

As far as the Jewish worker is concerned, he is freely accepted in the trade union movement, and most Jews actively participate in Italian political life.

There are a number of well-known M.P.'s of Jewish origin in the Italian Parliament, among them the wife of Palmiro Togliatti, the Italian Communist leader.

Although women have only recently obtained the right to vote, they are slowly becoming active. Italian Jewish women have formed themselves into an organization known as the A.D.E.I. (Associazione Donne Ebraiche Italiane). This organization has now been made eligible for membership of the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, which acts as the Italian counterpart to the Board of Deputies of British Jews.

The Union covers about 21 communities, and representation is generally based on local communities, not on organizations or institutions as such. The Union [illegible] in touch with other Jewish institutions in other countries.

The plight of the refugee Jews in Italy does not go unnoticed by any Italian, and the Italian Government does not appear to place any obstacles in their way. I was told that when the Government was approached to take steps to prevent Jews emigrating to Palestine, they replied that the responsibility for the refugees and their plight was that of Britain. Italian Jewish organizations endeavour to help the refugees in many ways.

A Warsaw court found Waclaw Zeman, a baker, guilty of denouncing Jews to the Gestapo during the occupation and sentenced to be hanged.

A branch office of the World Jewish Congress will be opened in Vienna to aid Austrian Jews scattered all over the world to resettle in their homeland.
